Life in Lubbock, TX

(AIMers in Lubbock, TX)

Life in Lubbock, before the summer, was very busy with people graduating, leaving, and preparing for the next phase in life. The AIMers have all reached their individual fields and my class mates are preparing for their mission fields, internships, and jobs. As for me, this summer, I had the opportunity to visit the AIMers in Mexico and Honduras. While we were there, we were able to check on how they were doing on their field, listen to their struggles and victories, encourage them, and give them advice. I and my AIM class mate, Jaret, decided to make this trip to help the AIMers; especially the ones that had been on the field for a year. If any of you have done missions, you will know how much it helps to have people you know and love come and see you in your work. After a year on the field, most have usually gone through some hard times and it is very common for AIMers to be discouraged around this time of year. We started with the AIMers in Mexico City and decided to take a bus (because it was so much cheaper) from there to Honduras. God took great care of us on the way down as we always had a place to stay and food to eat. When we arrived in Guatemala City the preacher at the church there (who was a friend of a friend of the preacher we stayed with the night before) took us in with “open arms”. The love for the body of Christ that was shown to us by the church in Guatemala City was extraordinary. They invited us to see the preaching school that they had there and we got to speak to their students for one of their classes. We spoke on the importance of missions and relying on God for your strength (Jaret translated for me). The next day we made it to Honduras safely and the visit with the AIMers went very well. The trip was very productive and encouraging for both us and the AIMers. We saw God working in us and in others in ways that are beautiful and mysterious. One of the biggest reminders for me on this trip was that our God can, in fact, do more than all we can ask or imagine.

Sunset International Bible Institute

I only have a few classes left to finish at SunSet, so I will be doing these online. It will be faster and will allow me to start preparing for the next phase of life. I will be living in SC as I finish up these classes and prepare for whatever God has in store for me next. Currently, I am planning to go into The China Now program. However, I will not be starting this program until February so; I will be looking for other opportunities and options during this time. If you have any ideas on something “missions related” that you find yourself moved to tell me about, please do! Therefore, this consequently will be my last official newsletter. I will be sending out one more letter at the end of July. It is amazing to think that the journey through AIM and SunSet is almost over but, it is. I want to say thank you to everyone who has supported me through prayers and in reading these letters over the years.

AIM Acts 2:37-39

(The AIM bus)

All of the AIMers are on their fields now. However, some are still having visa and support problems. If you are interested in supporting an AIMer on their field, please contact me and I will get you in touch with the Director of AIM.

The AIMers that I worked with last year, have now been on their mission field for a year and it has been amazing to see the ways that God has been working in their lives. It has also been encouraging to see how He has been using them to bless the lives of others. Roman, one of two AIM guys who was sent to Miami this year, is also planning to return to Lubbock and attend the SunSet school of preaching. His teammate, Gabo, is going to stay in Miami and work with the church there. It is amazing to see how God has been working in their lives as they have grown spiritually. They have gone from being new AIMers to doing lessons and Bible studies with non Christians.

God at work (Erick)

Back when I was an AIMer in Miami, I studied and baptized a guy named, Erick Ronquillo. His life in Christ has been a rough one with lots of ups and downs. All of his family, except for him and his brother, are Catholic. In Romans 12:1-2, Paul gives a charge to the Christians there, to not be conformed to the world but, to be transformed by the renewing of their mind. This is what it means to be a disciple of Christ. Jesus gives us the invite to "come as you are" and after you come to Him, He transforms you in to His very image. Erick is a great example of the supernatural working of the Holy Spirit. He has struggled in his walk but, he has kept the heart of a disciple, one of repenting and striving for Christ. God has been faithful to him and Erick is not the same person that he was four years ago. He is now going into the AIM program to continue in his growth with God at a deeper level. I am super proud of this guy and ask that you pray for him to get the support that he needs and to be able to have an open heart to what God is going to working in his life

Special thanks

I want to give a special thanks to everyone who supports me. Without you nothing that I have been blessed to do and am doing would be possible.
